EGSA Elections

At the June 3rd EGSA meeting, we will vote for our 1993-1994 executive officers. The only requirements for these positions are: 1) that you are an Ecology Graduate Student, and 2) that you have the enthusiasm to undertake one of these positions. No previous affiliation with EGSA is necessary!

If you have never attended an EGSA meeting, this is a great opportunity to meet fellow Ecology students, learn about the EGSA, munch on Las Salsas nachos, and vote for next year's executive officers. The agenda for this meeting includes a review of the Outstanding Professor Award nominations, final preparations for the Spring Party, and preliminary preparations for fall Orientation activities. Activities for next year include an outreach program to primary and secondary schools, planning the fall retreat, and much more!

Departmental Liaisons

For those of you who would like to be more in touch with the EGSA but just don't have time...here is your golden opportunity! You can become a Departmental Liaison. The EGSA would like to facilitate improved communication of departmental issues, news, activities, and problems back to the graduate group. Thus, we are looking for departmental liaisons in each of the approximately 37 departments that house Ecology Graduate Students. These positions will require very little time. As a liaison, your name and telephone number will be released to all the Ecology students in your department. Once a month, you will give a brief report from your department to the EGSA. If you cannot attend the monthly EGSA meetings, you can submit a written report, or contact one of the executive officers with your report. What could be more simple?! For more information about becoming a departmental liaison, come to the EGSA meeting on Thursday, June 3 at 5:45 at the YERC, or contact Julie Reynolds at 753-6561.
